

Sorry - Zach at Culinary Tea was so quick that I did not stick around long, and as I was leaving, I ran into my neighbor who was home from college. She was planning to go vote early because she thinks elections are sooooo important (she hopes to be president some day). But first she needed to get a birthday present for her sister EJ (who shares the same initials as her favorite shop in town). I can see the shop from here, so I am going to head there with her. I'll leave you a note if I go anywhere else!
